STARTLING POLITICAL DEBAUCHERY

Exposing Republican Election Methods in the Northwest-Intimidation, Bribery and False Counting Rampant,

LIGHTS AND SHADES OF DAILY LIFE.

Novel Experience in Setting a Hen—A Quin tuplex Birth.

Shocking Developments in the Donnelly-Washburn Contest. In the Donnelly-Washburn contested election case for the Third Minnesota district, the majority report of the sub-committee finds in favor of unseating Wash-burn, Republican, and seating Donnelly. It cites two hundred and ninety-one cases of bribery on the part of Washburn where the money was paid by Washburn's clerks. his business manager, the secretary of his political committee, or his political agents; over one hundred cases are traced directly to Washburn's office, the money in some cases being paid in his presence or in the presence of his brother, Gov. C. C. Washburn, of Wisconsin. In one case a Democratic village postmaster wrote directly to Washburn, offering to sell his vote for $50. Washburn, through a friend answered the letter, thanking him for his offer and sent a friend to him to pay the money. In another case ninety woodchoppers, who were not legal voters dot plasted old parrel he break, und I vent were paid $2 each to vote for Washburn, and the money was paid by Washburn's business manager. In another case a Democratic speaker who had been advocating Donnelly was announced to make a Democratic speech the night before election. He made a speech for Washburn, and told the next day that he had received $150 of Washburn's money for doing so. In the town of Crookston there were only eighty-five legal voters, but there were 258 votes cast, the greater part of these being by non-resident railroad hands, who were cach paid for voting for Washburn. A Democratic newspaper at Little Falls was bought to support Washburn for $250. A split herself more as ever. Mat as I vas, I United States land officer at St. Cloud was | tought to myself, Katrina, she sheak Engsent out by Washburn to canvass for him. He bribed a number of parties, and admits that he may have bribed one hundred. Great numbers of laborers employed in through a region of country half as large $5; another was paid $25; workmen were brought in their employers' offices the night before election and paid $5 to work and vote for Washburn; another got an overcoat : another a sack of flour : saloon keepers were paid $35 for voting their boarders. Besides these there were many cases where the party was paid money to vote for Washburn, but swears that he voted for Donnelly; in many other cases money was offered and declined. In addition to this, the sub-committee find that the workingmen of Minneapolis were intimidated by their employers, and a great many of them either forced to vote for Washburn or prevented from voting at all. Although the canvass was a most exciting one, and the Republicans polled their full vote, nearly 3,000 Democrats failed to vote in the city of Minneapolis. The committee find that this was caused by the fear of the workingmen that they would lose their situations if they voted for Donnelly. The Republican majority rose from 355 for Hayes in 1876 to 3,680 for Washburn in 1878. As a part of this system of intimidation, the ballots were numbered in one-half the precincts of Min-neapolis, where the laborers largely lived, with a number corresponding with the number of the voter on the poll lists, had been declared unconstitutional by the district court, and afterward by the supreme court, and in the face of the advice of the city attorney and attorney general of the state not to number them, and despite the advice even of the attorneys who had defended the law in the courts, public meeting resolved not to number them. The numbering took place in seven precincts, having twenty-one judges of election; by law fourteen of these should have been friends of Donnelly, as he was the candidate of both the Democrats and the Nationals, but out of the twenty-one judges he had but one friend. Two of these precincts did not return the vote for congressman until eighteen days after the election, and in one of these Washburn claimed 483 majority, while the tally sheets great length to expose the frauds by which Washburn got in.

kept by one of the clerks showed he had only 26 majority. The report continues at

Apropos of the hunting and fishing, did you ever hear of a wildcat taking possession of a spare bed in an inhabited cabin. Such a case really occurred this winter in this vicinity, at the herd-house of Overholt & Crouse. A Mr. Burns had been left in charge, and for several nights after he had retired, was disturbed by a scrambling in wax than natural-born members of our noise in the chimney, followed by the sight | race. of two glaring, fiery eyeballs in the opposite bed; and when he (Burns) moved or made a noise the low, fierce growl of some mains were visited by hundreds of people, wild animal. This kind of thing occurring for several nights in succession so discomposed Burns that he ted that a Yankee showman offered the parfinally vamoosed the ranche, and for sometime the intruder had things his own way. With plenty of fat beef and venison in store he must have come to the conclusion hat he had struck comfor John Garrison, a miner, hearing of the circumstance, made his way to the herdhouse, determined to interview the beast that had taken posession. When he arrived at the ranche, about four o'clock p. m., he at the ranche, about four o'clock p. m., he tre Square, Lancaster, Pa. and Thirty-one Thousand Eight was somewhat surprised to find the animal Hundred and Thirty-eight Dollars, in bed and disposed to fight for the Garcelonated establishment, but at sight of the gun the miner carried he flew up the chimney and into the brush. Garrison hung around until dark, then went to bed, placing his gun where he could reach it and quietly waited for

Mr. Cat. About 10 o'clock he heard a scrambling in the monstrous chimney, followed by the sound of stealthy footsteps across the floor and the sight of the flaming eyes peering out at him from the spare bed. John carefully raised his rifle, took as good aim as he could in the gloom and darkness at the shinning orbs and fired. The report of the rifle was followed by a short scream of agony, then the sound of struggling in the opposite bunk. The intrepid hunter struck a light and there, sure enough, was his cat, fully five feet in length, lying in the bed, its life blood slowly oozing

Colonial Standard, Picton, Nova Scotia. On Sunday morning last, February 15, Dr. Wm, Frascr, of New Glasgow, was summoned in a case of midwifery at the residence of Mr. Adam Murray, in the settlement called Egypt, about four miles from New Glasgow, on the Glenfalloch road. Mr. Murray's family, at the time of the doctor's arrival, consisted of seven children. Within an hour from that time Mrs. Murry presented her husband with five children, three girls and two boys, all perectly formed but very miniature specimens of humanity. Three so that the employers might know of the children were reported dead on the just how their men voted. This evening of the first day, and on Monday done under a law which a fourth. A large number of people have gone to see the most wonderful progeny. On Monday the four dead ones were laid side by side in a neat rosewood easket. part of a series of gifts from many of the townspeople. The following is a statement of the respective lengths and weights of the little cherubs (we take the underand also after the judges of election had in taker's figures as to dimensions, as he has assured us that he measured with great exactness: Length, 16 inches. Longest 16 inches-Second 15½ inches, Third 15½ inches, Fourth 14½ inches, 3 h 14 ounces 3 h 6 ounces 3 h 4 ounces 3 h 0 ounces 2 h 8 ounces .. 131/2 inches. The last-mentioned, the smallest, a girl, was the first-born of the quintuplex and is the one that has survived. The dead ones were to have been buried Wednesday afternoon. On Tuesday Mr. J. R. P. Fraser, photographer, took a number of good negatives of the children, living and dead, and will shortly publish their pictures which he intends to have copyrighted. The mother, who has doubtless rendered this province famous by an event that has only one or two counterparts in history, is a strong, healthy woman of a little over 30 years of age. She had seventeen brothers and sisters, her mother who is living, giving birth to eighteen children, twins three times. The father is an ordinary example of physical development-in fact, is below the average in stature and bodily proportions. Persons who have seen the children describe them as positively beautiful, the dead ones more resembling works of art

All the children are now dead, the last one dying on Wednesday last. The rewho left with the parents substantial tokens of their visits. It is currently reporents a large sum of money for the bodies of the infants
